Herdade do Cabeço da Flauta, Meco - Sesimbra

Super Bock Super Rock is returning to Sesimbra and Meco on July 18, 19 and 20. With the beach in sight and every bet on the most authentic music, as well as eclecticism, innovation and all of the national and international future of the music represented, namely, Masego performing on July 20 at the EDP Stage and ProfJam on the same day at the Super Bock Stage.

MASEGO

With Jamaican blood and a South African name (that means Blessing), Masego is a creativity bomb. His music is a sort of a “TrapHouseJazz” all mixed up, as he describes it. He’s been influenced by names such as Pharell, Michael Jackson, Jamie Foxx, John P. Kee, Andre 3000 or Cab Calloway. Even though he is very much at ease when he seeks inspiration in other decades, Masego is an artist of our time and as such, he began his career on Youtube and Soundcloud, combining the best beats with the sound of his saxophone and a soulful voice. The result of his first experiences on the digital platforms was his EP “The Pink Polo” which had the precious collaboration of the Texan producer Medasin that would later result in a tour that took Masego to countries like Japan, France, England, Germany, among others... His debut album, released in 2018, is called “Lady Lady” and it focuses on the figure of the woman and all her charms, confirming the best expectations regarding Masego, revealing a sophisticated and eclectic artist. He is now confirmed to Super Bock Super Rock’s next edition. July 20, at the EDP Stage.

PROFJAM

As a kid, he would memorize Eminem and Jay-Z’s lyrics barely understanding its meaning; today he stands as one of the main Portuguese hip-hop artists. ProfJam has always liked to rhyme and started recording them around 2008. As a newcomer in 2014, he was taking the lead in the Knock Out League and that talent has proved itself once again with the release of his mixtape “The Big Banger Theory”. In March 2016 he created his own label, Think Music Records accompanying the release of his latest work, “MIXTAKES”, a mixtape marked by the success of his single “Queq Queres”. After finishing a degree in production and music engineering in London at the SAE (School of Audio Engineering), ProfJam came back to Portugal and has been shining in the best national stages since. In 2017 he released the single “Xamã” with over 2 million views on YouTube and “Mortalhas”, with over 900 thousand views. ProfJam is now preparing a new phase in his career as his latest collaboration with producer Lhast already shows. Songs like “Água de Coco” are a sign for what’s to come this year in the Super Bock Stage, on July 20.
